
About the Author

Glenn E. Singleton is the president of Pacific Educational Group, Inc. (PEG). In 1992, he founded PEG to address systemic educational inequity by providing support to school systems in meeting the needs of underserved students of color. As chief executive officer, Singleton introduces PEG's Framework for Systemic Racial Equity Transformation to preK–12 district administrators and higher education executive leadership throughout the United States of America and various countries around the world.

Singleton and his team design comprehensive racial equity support for partner school districts and institutions of higher education. PEG helps educators heighten their awareness of institutional racism and develop effective strategies for eliminating systemic racial achievement disparities. In 1995, Singleton developed Beyond Diversity, a nationally recognized professional learning series aimed at helping educators identify and examine the powerful intersection of race and schooling. Beyond Diversity introduces the Courageous Conversation protocol and provides the foundation for all PEG-led programs.

Singleton appears on radio and television and has authored two books and written numerous articles on the topics of racial equity, institutional racism, leadership, and staff development for national journals, magazines, and newspapers. He served on the conference planning committee for Learning Forward (formerly National Staff Development Council) and annually produces the National Summit for Courageous Conversation. He is the 2003 recipient of the Eugene T. Carothers Human Relations Award for outstanding service in the fields of human rights and human relations. In 2009, Singleton was elected to serve as a commissioner on the California State Board of Education African American Commission.

Singleton was an adjunct professor of educational leadership at San José State University from 2004 to 2012. He has worked with teachers and administrators in various countries throughout Africa and has lectured at universities throughout the United States, Australia, and New Zealand. He is founder and member of the board of advisors of Foundation for a College Education of East
