

Working on the Work

INFORMATIONAL REFRAMING

Use an informational reframing protocol to analyze the section “An Inquiry Cycle to Focus the Work.” Consider what it is you knew about inquiry cycles as you approached this section. Then consider how the information in this passage was similar to and different from your prior knowledge. Finally, note the inferences you are making about inquiry cycles now and your reframed conclusions.

I already knew these things about PLC inquiry cycles:

Similarities Between the Passage and My Prior Knowledge	Differences Between the Passage and My Prior Knowledge
I can now infer . . .
My reframed conclusions are . . .	