Effects

(an effect, the effect, some effect)

Today I need a good grade in school! Bad grades have an effect on whether I go to high school or not. High school will have an effect on my life majorly. I need to go to high school because if I don't, it will obviously have even more of an effect on my life. This is why studying has a big effect on school and your progress in school. If I get bad grades,

(an effect, the effect, some effect)

(an effect, the effect, some effect)

(an effect, the effect, some effect)

(an effect, the effect, some effect)

it will have a visible and lasting effect on my mom's attitude at the end of the day. If I

(an effect, the effect, some effect)

fail, I can have an effect on my mom because she will have to home school me or take

(an effect, the effect, some effect)

me to summer school every day of the summer. This can have an effect on both of us

(an effect, the effect, some effect)

but I think that this will have an effect on me more because it's having an effect on my education.

(an effect, the effect, some effect)

Doing this journal entry is going to have a positive effect on my grade majorly. If this

(an effect, the effect, some effect)

journal entry sucks it will have a short-term effect on me and it will have a long-term

(an effect, the effect, some effect)

effect on whether I go to high school or not!
