

Student Thinksheet

What's Your Writing Identity?

---

Name: _____

If ...	Then ...	Comments
You write on your own time but mostly keep it to yourself, like a diary or personal collection of writing	You might be the type of writer who uses writing to learn both about yourself and the world around you.
You write when you are upset or bothered about something to create change	You might be the type of writer who uses writing to change the world and solve problems.
You write stories that are based on characters in your favorite books	You might be the type of writer who finds their greatest inspiration from other authors.
You do all you can to avoid writing	You might be the type of writer who is still figuring out where writing fits into your life.
You write to make others laugh	You might be the type of writer who uses humor not only to entertain but to change the way people think, feel, and act.

(Continued)

(Continued)

If ...	Then ...	Comments
Your sketch and writing seem to go hand in hand	You might be the type of writer who needs to envision their writing first and will help your reader envision clearly as well.
You most often write informational text	You might be the type of writer who is looking to teach others about important topics.
You write using technology (e.g., blog, Wattpad)	You might be the type of writer who keeps the audience/reader in the forefront of your writing process.
You ...	You might be ...
You ...	You might be ...

Some more space to tell me about you as a writer: