

Commas between city and state

Ex:

They were married in
(city, state)
Somerset, Kentucky.

PRACTICE THE CONVERSATION:

A: Will you please read the sentence?

B: They were married in Somerset, Kentucky.

A: Do you see a comma in this sentence?

B: I definitely do. It's after Somerset.

A: Why would someone put a comma there?

B: Well, it just separates the city from the state. It would be confusing without it.

A: So what's the comma rule here?

B: We use a comma to separate cities and states.

A: Good!
