

February 21

I have had many weird dreams, but few nightmares. One that I could remember for the longest time was when I was about 5. It was from a Scooby Doo movie, IRL though. So this was my nightmare.

I was going down the frozen section in a store on Shaggy's shoulders. Then the monsters from the movies started chasing us. Next thing I can remember was that me, my dad, and some other people were in a cage in the fruits and vegetables department.

We were trying to unlock it with these shapes that reminded me of Dora for some reason. I knew it was a dream, and I was trying to open my eyes, but I wasn't able to.

Finally, I get them open. I guess all nightmares seem scary, but when you look back, they seem kind of pathetic.
