

January 21

New Journal

Today I am starting my new journal! I am bummed because I was so far in my

(FANBOYS) (AAAWWWBIS)
old journal, and knowing that I have to start a new journal makes me sad. If I find my old journal I will most likely keep this as a spare. But I don't think my old journal will ever come around again. It's almost like I want to put signs up everywhere saying, "Wanted, Writing Journal." I really can't seem to find it. It's like it ran away from home. The office said they would keep a lookout for it and that if they found it they would give it to me straight away. I was so close to finishing my old journal and had a lot of writings in that journal. The front office of the school said that they share the playground with the JCC so the JCC could have found it and instead of returning it to the school office, they might have taken it to the JCC lost and found with a lot of other stuff. Another thing that might have happened is that they might have thrown it away. I'm hoping that if someone does have it or finds it they return it. Now that I'm done with this and I am in trouble with the JCC and school, I have to take down my signs and that will take forever . . .

(FANBOYS)

(FANBOYS)

(FANBOYS)

(FANBOYS)

(FANBOYS) (FANBOYS)

—Layne Dentinger
Grade 8