Checklists

Checklists remind us of the minimum necessary steps and make them explicit. They ... instill a kind of discipline of higher performance.

The checklist manifesto: How to get things right

Figure 8.3 Turn-to-Your-Neighbor Checklist

Students know . . .	✓
Who their learning partner will be before they start.
What tasks, if any, they need to do before they turn to their neighbor.
What tasks they need to do with their partner (for example, confirm their understanding, compare answers, share an opinion).
The outcome they need to produce for the class (a written product, a comment to share with the class, thumbs up, and so forth) at the end of the conversation.
How they should communicate with each other (in particular, how they should listen and talk).

Guiding Questions

Sentence Writing Unit

1. How do I use capital letters and end punctuation?
2. How are subjects and verbs used in sentences?
3. What are the sentence types using independent and dependent clauses?
4. How do I identify subjects and verbs?
5. How can I make sure that a sentence makes sense?
6. Why should I worry about sentence writing?

Why?

- Preparation improves teaching
- Proper emphasis on core content
- Learning focus rather than an activity focus

Why?

- Provides a learning target
- Supports differentiation
- Supports formative assessment

Address the standards.
Identify the knowledge students need to learn.
Identify the skills students need to learn.
Identify the big ideas students need to learn.
Choose meaningful or important topics.
Choose personally relevant topics.
Use the most appropriate words.
Keep language easy to understand.
Prompt students to use learning strategies.
Prompt students to use technology.
Prompt students to use communication skills.

The River-Merchant's Wife: A Letter

by Ezra Pound

While my hair was still cut straight across my forehead
I played about the front gate, pulling flowers.
You came by on bamboo stilts, playing horse,
You walked about my seat, playing with blue plums.
And we went on living in the village of Chokan:
Two small people, without dislike or suspicion.

At fourteen I married My Lord you.
I never laughed, being bashful.
Lowering my head, I looked at the wall.
Called to, a thousand times, I never looked back.

At fifteen I stopped scowling,
I desired my dust to be mingled with yours
Forever and forever and forever.
Why should I climb the look out?

At sixteen you departed,
You went into far Ku-to-yen, by the river of swirling eddies,
And you have been gone five months.
The monkeys make sorrowful noise overhead.

You dragged your feet when you went out.
By the gate now, the moss is grown, the different mosses,
Too deep to clear them away!
The leaves fall early this autumn, in wind.
The paired butterflies are already yellow with August
Over the grass in the West garden;
They hurt me. I grow older.
If you are coming down through the narrows of the river Kiang,
Please let me know beforehand,
And I will come out to meet you
As far as Cho-fu-Sa.

Learning Maps

A good map is both a useful tool and a magic carpet to far away places

Sentence Writing

Sentence Writing

Why?

- Seeing supports learning
- Keeps students and teachers on track
- Shows the big picture
- Structures the beginning & ending of lessons

Why?

- Supports repeated review
- Makes connections explicit
- Helps struggling note-takers
- Is a living study guide

What do you think about learning maps? Would they be helpful in some classes in your school?

3. Create specific proficiencies

- Ask, “What knowledge, skills, big ideas do students need to learn?”
- Write short sentences.
- Be concise (simple, not simplistic).
- Be comprehensive
- Be precise

The specific proficiency is . . .	✓
Targeted: . . . a partial answer to a guiding question.
Focused: . . . contains one idea.
Complete: . . . written as a complete sentence.
Short: . . . as concise as possible.
Accessible: . . . easily understood by students.
Comprehensive: . . . in combination with all other specific proficiencies, represents a complete answer to the question.

How do you identify subjects and verbs?

- A subject is a noun
- A noun is a person, place, thing, quality, or idea
- A verb describes a mental or physical action or state of being
- Ask who or what plus the verb to find the subject
- Knowing how to identify subjects and verbs is a big part of effective writing

4. Identify checks for understanding every identified specific proficiency. The form in Figure 3.3 is one way of organizing thinking around assessment.

To use the form, teachers write the guiding question in section 1. In section 2, they list all of the specific proficiencies. Finally, in section 3, they list the assessments they will use to assess whether or not students have learned each specific proficiency. There are numerous ways that what students are learning can be assessed. Some of the more popular ways of checking for understanding include the following.

Exit Tickets. Exit tickets are short tasks students can do before they leave class. Usually students complete the tasks by writing on small pieces of paper or index cards, and students hand their paper to their teacher as they exit class, in the same way they might hand over a ticket at a movie theater as they enter. The task could be a writing assignment, a short quiz, or a question students are to answer. Some teachers use exit tickets at the end of every class as a closing routine. Teachers can give students tasks that are untimed, such as “write as much as you know about this topic up until you hear the bell,” to ensure that students stay engaged until the end of class.

Quick Informal Assessments

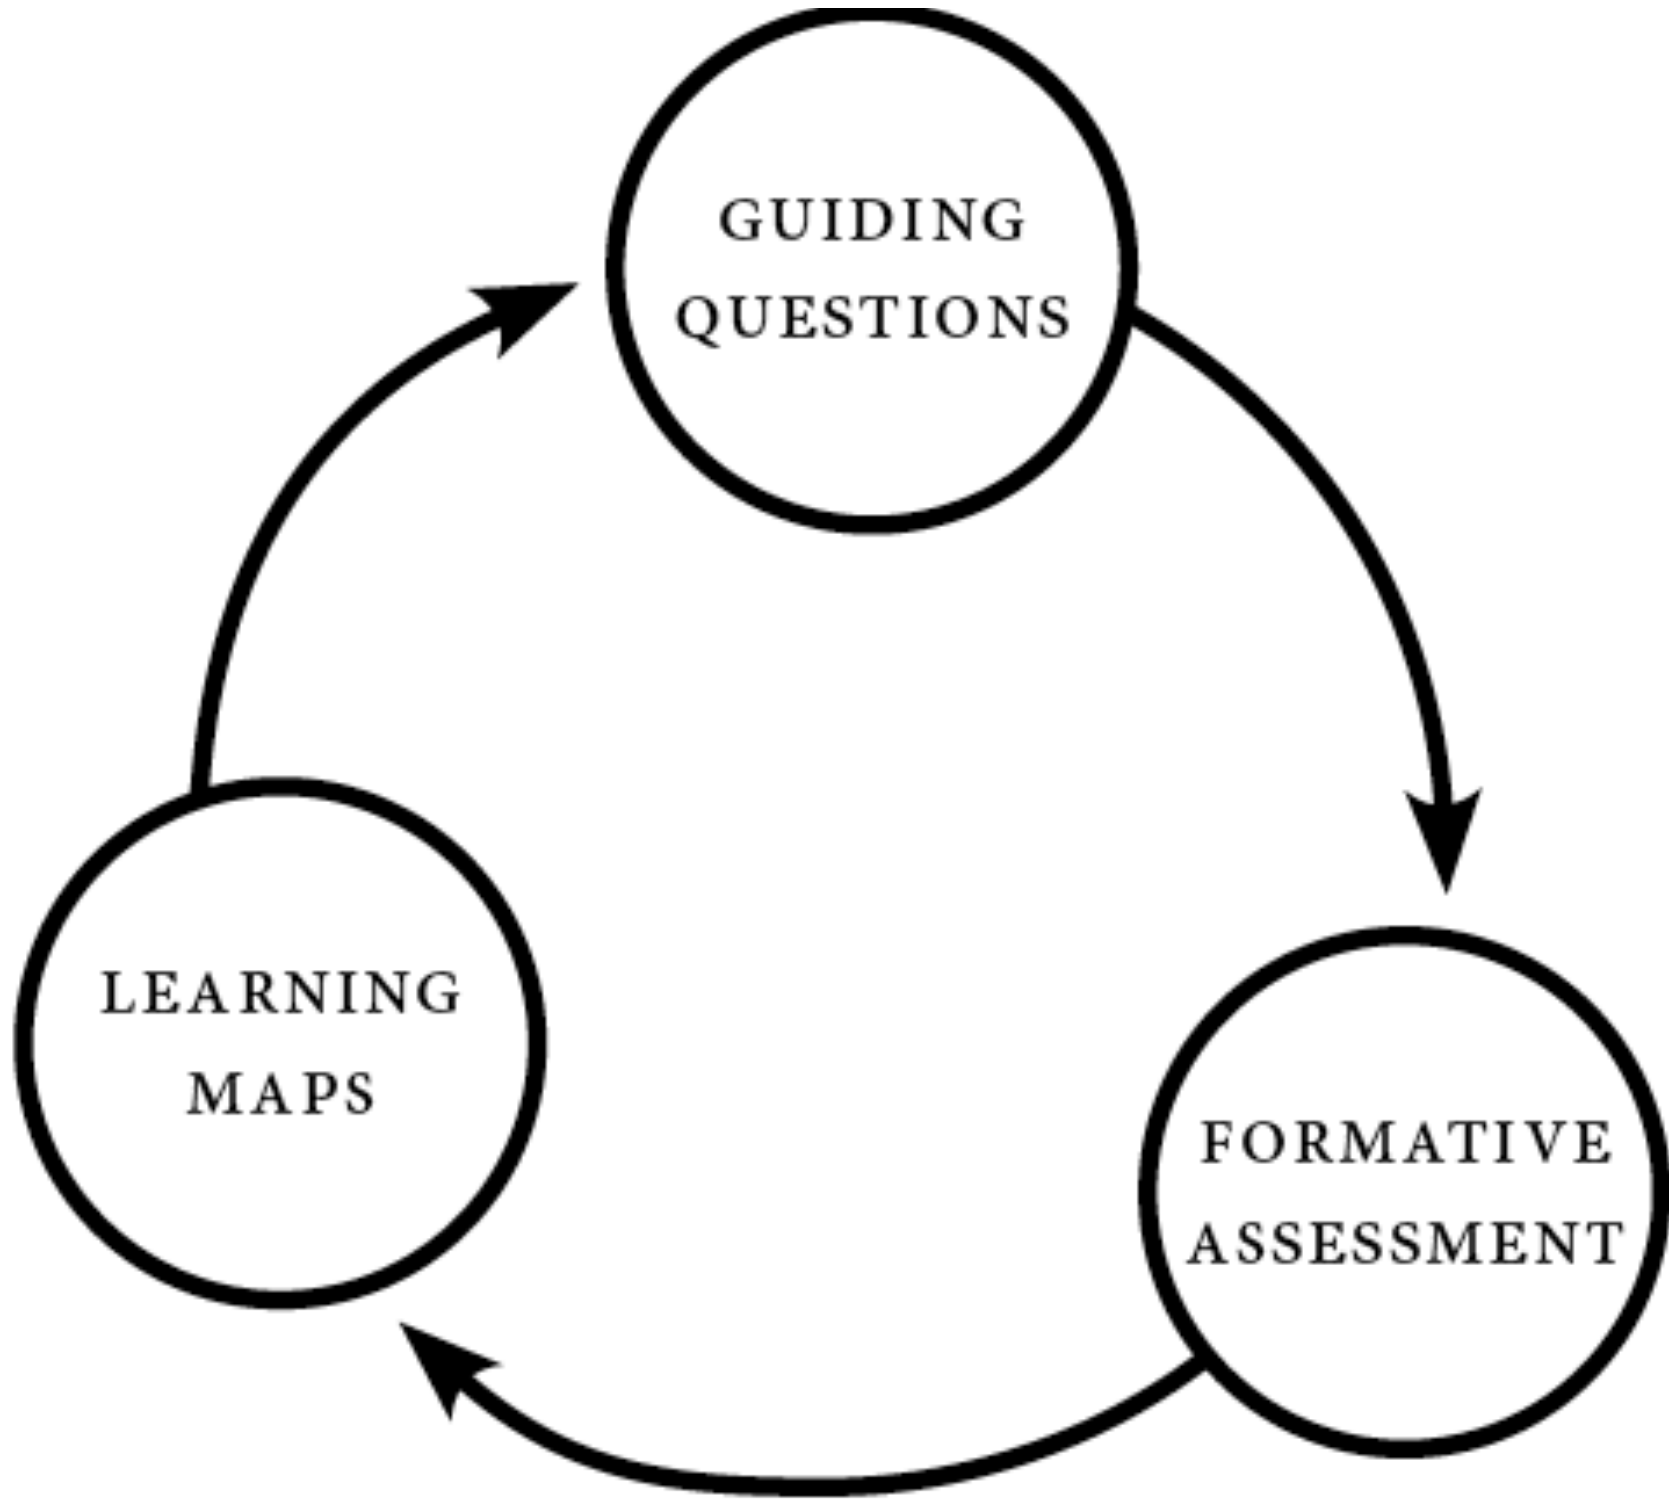

Exit tickets	Hot potato
White boards	Soccer, hockey, basketball
Response cards	Graphic organizers
Clickers	Writing
Thumbs up, thumbs down, thumbs wiggly	Game show
Turn-to-your- neighbor	Jigsaw or gallery walk
Paraphrasing	Four corners
Group answers	Bell work
Think, pair, share	Quizzes or tests
Question everyone

Success Factors	✓
The teacher clearly understands the learning structure.
The teacher has created a psychologically safe environment.
The teacher has written expectations for how students should act, talk, and move while they perform the cooperative learning activity.
Students have learned the expectations for how to act, talk, and move during the cooperative learning activity.
Students have learned and use appropriate social skills to interact positively and effectively during the activity.
The teacher has carefully considered the optimal makeup of each group of students.
The teacher has given students sufficient time for each activity, without providing so much time that the learning loses intensity.
Students have additional activities they can do if they finish their tasks before others in the class.
The teacher has planned additional activities to use during the class if activities take less time than planned.
The teacher has planned how to adjust the lesson plan if activities take more time than planned.
The teacher uses an effective attention signal.

The beauty we've designed into our center isn't window dressing; it's an essential part of our success. It nourishes the spirit, and until you reach that part of the spirit that isn't touched by cynicism or despair, no change can begin. You can't show a person how to build a better life if they feel no pleasure in the simple act of being alive. That's why I built this place, and why I fill it with sunlight, and quilts, and flowers.
