

The answer to the question posed on pg. 77:

“Sometimes map publishers place an error on maps on purpose to protect their copyright. It will be easy to prove somebody copied their map, instead of doing their own surveying, if the map in question has the same error.”