BTW We're Parents Not Teachers

BTW, We're Parents, Not Teachers

(But We Wanna Help!)

Use this infographic to nail down the most important ways parents can help with distance (and face-to-face) learning.

ASK FOR HELP.

Contact your child's teacher to get explicit steps about how you can help when your child gets stuck on a concept.

DITCH THE PHONES.

Whether your child is learning remotely or in-person, ditch the cell phones during school and/or homework. Kids simply can't handle the distraction.

ANY POINTERS?

Ask your child's teacher for pointers about:

- Schedules
- Routines
- Motivation

THANK YOU!

Express gratitude to your child AND your child's teacher for all the hard work involved in distance and in-person learning.

SOCIAL INTERACTION!

Optimize learning by including peer interaction! Ask your child's teacher about ways to connect your child with their peers about school work!
