Proportional relationships can be represented by equations of the form $y = kx$, where $k$ can be replaced by any number.

1. What are the properties of the table of a proportional relationship? Why?

2. What are the properties of the graph of a proportional relationship? Why?